FROM THE DESK OF FATHER ROTT

This weekend we celebrate the feast of Pentecost. The gifts of the Holy Spirit given to the Church on Pentecost Sunday are wisdom, understanding, counsel, fortitude, knowledge, piety, and fear of the Lord. These gifts were used to help the early church to grow. The Lord is calling us to use these gifts to interact with a doubtful culture. Not to be afraid!

We live in a time where many people that grew up with various understandings of our faith no longer consider themselves affiliated. People will say, Father, what can I do? There are many different reasons why people are no longer affiliated with the Church. Consider reading the book RETURN - HOW TO DRAW YOUR CHILD BACK TO THE CHURCH by Brandon Vogt. The book will be helpful for children or anyone you know that may have left – the same principles apply. Brandon recommends the following seven steps on bringing your child/loved one/friend back to the church on his website brandonvogt.com/category/return.

1. Pray, fast and sacrifice

If you aren't doing these three things, the other steps won't matter. Commit right now to praying 5-10 minutes each day for your child's return. Jesus' parable of the persistent widow (Lk 18:1-8) confirms that God loves tireless prayer — even if you pray for the same need every day. Don't give up, and don't think your prayer is unheeded or pointless. Look at what St. Monica's prayers did for St. Augustine.

Also, fast and sacrifice for your child. Skip a meal, give up Facebook or Netflix for a week or willingly bear a small pain. Then offer your sufferings to God on behalf of your child. Unite them to the cross and ask that He send new grace into your child's life.

2. Equip yourself

You can't give what you don't have. You may be excited about sharing the Faith, but enthusiasm and goodwill won't get you far. You need to know your faith. The two go-to sources are the Bible and the catechism. Become familiar with them and read them each day, in small doses.

Then find good Catholic books that will help you explain and defend the Faith so you're ready when your child reveals his main hang-ups with the Church.

3. Plant the seeds

You should also begin planting "seed gifts" in their life. These are DVDs, books or CDs that can lead them to reconsider the Church. Many people who come back to the Church point to a resource like this that sparked their return. Leave a booklet on their desk, mail them a DVD or drop a CD in their car. Even before you start discussing God or the Church with your child, you need to plant small seeds of faith and trust in their life. One seed is unconditional love. Your child needs to know that you'll love them no matter what — no matter their moral choices or whether they stay away from the Church. They must know that you totally will their good. Only then will they listen to you.

4. Start the conversation

At some point, you need to open a dialogue about God and the Church. You might say, "Can I ask you something? I wonder if you'd be up for talking about spiritual things some time. I know you have a mixed relationship with the Church, but would you be open to chatting about it with me? I just want to listen."

Then do just that: listen. Your goal is to detect why your child has drifted from the Church. Note that the reasons they give may be different than what you expect. Ask them what they believe and why, and what pushed or pulled them away.

Don't respond to the objections or criticisms just yet — just absorb them. This may involve biting your tongue, but the scar tissue will be worth it!

5. Move the dialogue forward

You've now identified why your child left the Church. Maybe they drifted away unintentionally. Maybe they switched religions. Maybe they disagree with the Church's moral teachings. Or maybe they no longer believe in God. Whatever the case, now's the time to start discussing those factors.

Speaking with joy and positivity, clear up any misconceptions they have. For example, if they say, "I was never spiritually fed as a Catholic," it's likely they never fully understood the Eucharist or were exposed to the great spiritual masters of our tradition. Gently propose those to them and encourage them to reconsider.

6. Invite and connect

Once your child expresses curiosity and openness to returning, invite them to a parish event. This might be a weekend retreat, such as Christ Renews His Parish or Cursillo, or perhaps a parish small-group study or community event. Your goal is to usher them into the life of the parish, which will re-establish the communal bonds of faith.

If your child is in college, connect them with the local Catholic campus ministry, such as FOCUS or the Newman Center. Leaders there will be thrilled to talk with them and help them on their journey.

Don't move too fast, though. Only extend these invitations after they've expressed openness to returning, otherwise you may push them away.

7. Close the loop

Finally, you need to help your child formally reconcile with the Church. Lots of people get stuck here. A priest once told me about a lady who left the Church as a teenager and stayed away for over 30 years. Her reason? She simply didn't know how to come back.

Don't let that happen. Once your child is ready to return, talk with your pastor and determine the right steps to close the loop. Maybe they just need a good confession, or perhaps the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA) is more appropriate. A good priest will assess the situation and determine the best next steps.

May the Lord bless you this Pentecost Sunday. Come Holy Spirit! Be a saint during these times!

The St. John's Hospice Toiletry program is being put on hold.

Thank you so much to everyone who has generously contributed to the Saint John's Toiletry Program. Due to a slow decline over the past year Saint John's needed to take us off of their pick-up route temporarily! We will keep you updated moving forward.
